Are you looking for an internship in an innovative Software as a Service start-up environment in Amsterdam? Then, a (web)software development internship at Olery might be right for you!

The company

In 2009, two young Entrepreneurs came up with an idea for a tool to provide Hotel management with a way to get trip on the online reputation of the hotel. Olery has developed a solution to measure and analyze the online reputation and the overall guest experience of individual and groups of hotels. We continue to improve and expand the product range and could use some help with:

- The development of prototypes
- The development of new features
- Improving current features and systems

What we offer:

- Challenging internship of at least 5 months in a tech start-up
- Your own responsibility of a project
- Broad spectrum of things to do and to learn, with clear results.
- Support and training of professionals
- Nice location in Amsterdam with a sunny roof terrace.
- It's possible to discuss specific internship assignments
- Dutch is NOT a requirement, English is though.

What de we expect from you?

- A passion for software and or web development, databases and the latest technology
- Experience with HTML and CSS
- Willingness to learn Ruby and Javascript in a short period of time
